A method to measure the activities of students

Masa-aki Taniguchi

Comprehensive Scientific Education Center, Meijo University, 468-8502, JAPAN

mass@meijo-u.ac.jp

We propose a new method of measuring student's activation level. We total the remark frequency of each student in every lecture, and we see the relation between the remark frequency and the point of the final examination. We obtain the result of suggesting "The understanding level of the student who made remarks a lot is high".