

Information for supporting members of JPS

The Physical Society of Japan (JPS) is an academic society dedicated to the advancement and promotion of physics and contributes to the development of science in Japan by presenting research on physics and its applications, exchanging knowledge, and strengthening cooperation among members and with partners in Japan and abroad (Membership: about 16,000).

In order to achieve these objectives, JPS is developing and engaging in a variety of activities, such as the organization of Annual Meetings, Spring/Autumn Meetings, Branch Meetings, Online Physics Lectures, Public Lectures and other academic meetings, and also publishes Nihon Butsuri Gakkaishi (Butsuri), European language-based journals, and other publications.

We sincerely hope that applicants will agree with the objectives, projects and activities of JPS as described above and join us as a supporting member. Both groups and individuals can become supporting members.
